

Dear students of the Faculty,

I trust you are all safe and well in these times of concern. As you are aware, physical examinations could not be continued with, due to concerns about student health and safety, which remains our primary concern. Nevertheless, I am also aware of the negative impacts that can be caused to your future aspirations due to delays in your education. Therefore, as already informed to you, the Faculty has decided to commence the new academic year for all students on the 2nd November 2020. This decision has been taken so that teaching and learning, which we can safely and effectively carry out even in an online setting, can continue uninterrupted. In this way, your studies will not be affected too deeply.

When the situation eases, we will give you enough time to prepare yourself for the examination and conduct the examination papers that were postponed. Therefore, I hope you will make use of this opportunity to engage in your learning activities and make productive use of this time. If you require any form of support, please reach out to us on sarlawcmb@gmail.com.

Hope everything will turn out well in the end. We will stand together against the outbreak of covid-19, in order to keep yourself and others safe. I would highly recommend that you stay indoors, stay away from others as much as you can. Bring your hand sanitizer and use it all time, and practice social distancing.

Wishing you strength to face every problem, joy and happiness to enjoy your wonderful life.

Sincerely

Prof W. I. Nanayakkara
Dean / Faculty of Law
